Crime and Punishment.

Wendell Phillips, in a recent lecture, contrasted the security established by law for personal safety, which exists in England and in the United States. He thought that crime is punished oftener in the former than in this country, and consequently, that less inducement is offered in England than here, for the commission of offenses.

Some newspapers have caught Mr. Phillips, by producing the number of inhabitants and the number of convicted offenders in England and the United States, and the record shows that the greater number belongs to England. They exultingly point to these figures as conclusive evidence that ours, in this respect, is the better country, and warn Mr. Phillips that he is in much greater danger when walking the streets of London than in New York. It does not require much penetration to see that this conclusion is wrong. All that is proved by the statistics is that more persons are punished in one country than in the other.

It is proved that more offenders are caught and brought to justice in England than in the United States. It is impossible to believe otherwise than that an immense number of persons guilty of a violation of the criminal law are never discovered in this country. Our police system except in a few cities, are complete failures for the detection of criminals of a higher grade. Forgery and counterfeiting are daily going on in the United States, and it is only occasionally that a capture of the criminals is effected.

In California, it is said that three thousand robbers infest the mountains and other out-of-the-way places, few of whom are ever arrested. In most of the mining communities of the United States, lawlessness runs riot, and the principal defense a man has lies in his ability to shoot quickly. In our entire frontier desperate men abound, who are seldom brought to a trial, much less convicted of the crimes of which they are guilty.

It may be safe to say that in that country, where the most convictions are obtained in courts of persons charged with offenses against the law, that the greatest security prevails. Where punishment follows the crime with regularity and certainty, but few men will be guilty. It is the opportunity and the hope of concealment which make the criminal, except in those rare cases when a deliberate intention to endure the penalty of gratified passion, exists.

The Tichborne Claimant

The mills of the Gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine," is an adage realized by the Tichborne claimant. Though a long and weary road, he has at length arrived at a compensation for his conspiracy and crime. A more deliberately laid or better executed plan of false personation, perhaps was never made, but English law and justice proved more than a match for the imposter.

It is observed that the details of the conspiracy were adequate to the scheme itself; and nothing less than the thorough measures adopted for its defeat would have succeeded. The efforts of counsel were gigantic, to put Roger Orton in possession of the Tichborne property, and were, if possible, greater still, to save him from punishment.

England has seen many of these pretenders. Perkin Warbeck and Lambert Simmel, in times when royal blood was an especial mark for violence, attempted to personate murdered Kings, and the success of Warbeck, for a while, was as astounding. Many to this day believe that his was no imposture, and that he was the heir of the Plantagenets.

A schooner named in honor of the first man who ever dared openly to advocate, in the United States Senate, universal freedom for all men without regard to color, was an occasional visitor to this port for many years; she was generally fortunate, and the John P. Hale was considered a very "lucky" vessel. On the day when the Senatorial pioneer of abolitionism breathed his last at Dover, and very nearly at the same hour, we are informed that the schooner John P. Hale went a shore on "Norman's Woe," a rock off Cape Ann, Mass., and was broken into fragments by the sea—the hero-philanthropist and the stanch little vessel bearing his name closing their career at the same time.—Ex.

EDITORIAL BUDGET.

The strength of a funeral is now estimated by the hand power employed.

— Col. John S. Mosby, of Virginia, expresses a willingness to run for Congress, if his friends desire.

— When the wrong man is lynched by mistake in Michigan, the lynchers send to the friends of the deceased his body put in a nice coffin.

— Society will cut you dead if your visiting card isn't four inches long by two inches wide, and of heavy Bristol board slightly tinted or watered.

— A bill is before the Minnesota Legislature making twelve per cent, the maximum legal rate of interest in that State, and visiting with severe penalties its violation.

— Ignatius Donnelly and the rest of the opposition members in the Legislature of Minnesota are endeavoring to organize a new anti-monopoly party, that shall monopolize all the offices in the State.

— The Kansas House passed a bill making it a misdemeanor for a member of the Legislature, or any State, county, or township officer, to accept a railroad pass. The bill prescribes fines of from $100 to $1,000 for its violation.

— Legislature of Pennsylvania, under the provisions of the new constitution, has passed a law providing for the election of a Lieutenant Governor of the State in November. He is to receive a salary of $3,000 per annum, and to be elected for a term of four years.

— The first thing a young man does when he sees a friend with a new hat on is to take it off and serenely try it on his own head. When a young lady sees one of her acquaintances with a new bonnet, she just lifts up her nose and serenely wonders "where the thing got that fright from."

— A colored man in Grayson county, Virginia, answering to the name of Churchwell Jones, has a cow on his premises that brought forth a few days since, a male calf, perfectly formed in all its parts, without any sign whatever of legs. The body of this calf is about four feet long. It sucks the cow when held up, and bids fair to live.—Wytheville Dispatch.

— Kenealy, counsel for the Tichborne claimant, has published a card, protesting against the language of the press and conduct of the court towards his client. He protests particularly against what he styles the one-sided use of the power of commitment for contempt, which he declares is unconditional and a revival of the Star chamber proceedings.

In conclusion, Dr. Kenealy says the prosecution has succeeded in destroying the claimant, and now seeks to ruin his counsel. Charles Orton has made the confession, which is published in the Globe, that the claimant is his own brother.

WILMINGTON COTTON MILL.

IN ACCORDANCE with a resolution of the corporators of the above corporation, held Saturday, March 7th, 1874, books are now opened for subscriptions to be used in the construction of a Cotton Cloth Factory in the city of Wilmington, N. C., at the "Wilmington Trust Company and Savings Bank" No. 51, Market street, and in the town of Goldsboro, at the Branch Bank of New Hanover.

He protests particularly against what he styles the one-sided use of the power of commitment for contempt, which he declares is unconditional and a revival of the Star chamber proceedings.

In conclusion, Dr. Kenealy says the prosecution has succeeded in destroying the claimant, and now seeks to ruin his counsel. Charles Orton has made the confession, which is published in the Globe, that the claimant is his own brother.

— It is really no wonder that the "opposite sex" occasionally burst forth into plaintive reproach, and upbraid fair ones for the many means resorted to in order to deceive them. For in the contest awarded by Paris to the most beautiful, deceits are invented and boldly worn such as are sometimes almost too astounding for belief. Years ago we remember hearing of a French singer at a café chantant, whose husband, on being complimented upon the dazzling fairness of his wife's neck, lifted off a pair of shoulder of tinted wax so arranged as to be easily adjustable. But that any of our belles should consent to the paltry deception of wearing false kid necks, made in Berlin and Paris and sent, with a vast amount of mystery, to the beauty ambitious of a full round neck and shoulders, is something that almost needs to be seen to be believed."

Yet this is done. Let one fancy meeting a lady at a ball whose tulle scarf dexterously wrapped about her throat and carelessly thrown back so as to form pendant ends over her back, serves only to soften the gloss and enhance the sympathy of what seems to her dazzled observer a superb pair of shoulders. Fancy discovering afterward, perhaps, when said lady has become a bride, that those shoulders were but a dream—made of kid! That is worse than nightmare, and it would seem that even a Bayard could hardly say, "False one, I love thee still."

That the desire to have the credit for having what does not belong to one should urge to such flagrant deception is astonishing, but still more so is the blindness that leads the deceiver to suppose that this arm, etc., etc., can be reconciled with this roundness in the neck. And here puffed tulle sleeves are called into play. It is said the flesh colored enamel makes the complexion, down to the joining hidden by the tulle, a perfect match to the kid! Does not the reader may demand. Well, let us suppose that this arm, etc., etc., etc., can be reconciled with this roundness in the neck. The summum is returnable to the Superior Court of New Hanover county on the eighth Monday after the fourth Monday in February, A. D. 1874. The defendant is to be tried for a year, and the attachment has been issued in this cause to returnable to the Superior Court of New Hanover county on the eighth Monday after the fourth Monday in February, A. D. 1874.

STEAM DREDGE.—The successful workings of the steam Dredge, on our convincing the most skeptical that the Dredge will accomplish what is aimed for it. Yesterday a stump measuring eight feet of solid timber, at its base was taken up. Many logs, umps, knees, etc., are also removed.

WHY is not the minor liquor law enforced in our city. We noticed an urchin "pretty well in for it" yesterday.

The Mayor adjudicated three cases of disorderly conduct, and one case of selling liquor without a license, this morning.

The Wallace Sisters' Cornet Band paraded through our streets, led by the four comedians, Fortescue, Blake, Dobson and Johnson, discoursing fine music.

BRILLIANT SUCCESS.—It is permitted to few men or companies to achieve acknowledged superiority in any important position or business. The present generation has witnessed stupendous rivalry in several branches of industry, and notably the Sewing Machine business. Amid a multitude of competitors steadily and surely the Wheeler & Wilson Company held their way from the beginning, upon fixed and honorable principles. Long since, their leading position in America was established abroad, at London, in 1862, they won the highest premiums; at Paris, in 1867 they distanced eighty-two competitors, and were awarded the highest premium of 100 shares) was taken by the 20th inst., it would insure the road being built by the 1st of May next.

The following section of the by-laws, explaining how the road would be controlled, was requested to be published in order that stockholders who wished to subscribe in future might know how the management of the affairs of the railroad will be conducted.

That the direction, management and control of each particular line of road constructed by means derived from subscriptions to the special stock of the corporation shall be vested exclusively in the particular subscribers to such special stock, their representatives, associates and assigns by means of whose subscriptions to such special stock any such particular line of road was originally constructed, and they shall have the exclusive right to elect, annually, from among themselves, such number of Directors for the management, direction and control of their particular line of road as they may deem best, and such Directors shall have the exclusive power to appoint all such officers, agents and employees, and make all such contracts as they may consider necessary for the successful construction, conduct and operation of the particular line of road under their management and direction, and it is expressly understood and agreed, that the provisions of this by-law shall be construed as a perpetual contract between this corporation and the present and future holders of the first and second preferred stock of this corporation, with the subscribers to the special stock of this corporation, their representatives, associates and assigns, in reference to any particular line of road which may be constructed by means of subscriptions to the special stock of this company, and this company and the holders of its first and second preferred stock will, whenever thereto required, execute any such covenant and agreements as may be necessary to carry into full effect, each and every of the provisions of this by-law.

WAERAS, There was no tax levied or collected for the use of this township for the last five years, and whereas, there are debts against the said township outstanding and unpaid, therefore be it

Resolved, That the County Commissioners be requested to levy and collect for the ensuing fiscal year for the use of this township, the same percentage of tax which was levied and collected for the fiscal year, beginning April 1st, 1871, the same being for the current expenses of the said township.

Resolved, That the Clerk of this Board be instructed to forward to the Board of County Commissioners a certified copy of the resolution.

A Cure for Consumption.

An exchange says: A correspondent writes as follows about the sanitary power of a very well known plant: I have discovered a remedy for pulmonary consumption. It has cured a number of cases after they had commenced bleeding at the lungs and the hectic flush was already on the cheek. After trying this remedy to my own satisfaction, I have thought philanthropy required that I should let it be known to the world. It is the common mullin, steeped strong and sweetened with coffee sugar, and drank freely. The herb should be gathered before the 5th of July, if convenient. Young or old plants are good if dried in the shade, and kept in clean paper bags. The medicine must be continued from three to six months, according to the nature of the disease. It is good for the urinary vessels also. It strengthens the system, and builds up instead of taking away the strength. It makes good blood, and takes inflammation from the lungs.
It is the wish of the writer, that ever periodical in the United States and Canada and Europe should publish this receipt for the benefit of the human family. Lay this up and keep it in the house ready for use.

Never speak boastingly of your business.

THE TOWN CRIER.

Mild Gold is 111*1*. Fine time for visiting.
Wallace Sisters to-night. Read the advertisements.
Mebane has collard seeds. Fruit trees are in bloom.
Fish market well supplied. How about the water works?
Advertise your spring business. Collin's free lunches are immense.
Wallace Sisters and troupe have arrived.

Railroad meeting was well attended.
D. A. Smith & Co., sell elegant furniture.
The new pavements give us quite a cityified appearance.

Rush for seats for the Wallace Sisters' performance to-night.

The poor house fences suffered by the late fire to the tune of eighty-five panels.

Some one confined in the jail stole a brass knob and bolt from the pump, keeping his hand in.

Don't forget the Hibernian Ball at the Bank of New Hanover Hall on the eve of St. Patrick's Day.
